The Greeks and Romans own our boundless slains

Dance, vill pregociate, feeld, copet, or fight.

The Whiles Graces, Virtues THO' I'm a female, and the rule is ever, For us, in Epilogue, to beg your favour, Yet now I take the lead--- and, leaving art And envy to the men-with a warm heart, A woman bere I come---to take a woman's part. J No little jealousies my mind perplex, I come, the friend and champion of my fex; I'll prove, ye fair, that let us have our swing, We can, as well as men, do any thing; Nay, better too, perhaps---for now and then, These times produce some bungling among men, In spite of lordly wits---with force and case, Can't we write plays, or damn'em, if we please? The men, who grant not much, allow us charms---Are eyes, shapes, dimples, then, our only arms? To rule this man our fex dame Nature teaches; Mount the high borfe we can, and make long speeches; Nay, and with dignity, some wear the breeches; And why not wear 'em? --- We shall have your votes, While some of t' other sex wear petticoats. Did not a Lady Knight, late Chevalier, A brave, smart soldier to your eyes appear? Hey! presto! pass! bis fword becomes a fan. A comely woman rifing from the man.

PROLOGUE.

The French their Amazonian maid invite ---She goes -- alike well skill'd to talk or write, Dance, ride, negociate, scold, coget, or fight. If the should set ber beart upon a rover, And be prove false, she'd kick her faithless lover. The Greeks and Romans own our boundless claim---The Muses, Graces, Virtues, Fortune, Fame, Wisdom and Nature too, they women call; With this fweet flatt'ry --- yet they mix some gall---'Twill out -- the Furies too are females all. The pow'rs of Riches, Physic, War, and Wine, Sleep, Death, and Devils too -- are masculing. Are we unfit to rule ? --- a poor fuggestion! Austria and Russia answer well that question. If joy from sense and matchless grace drife, With your own treasure, Britons, bless your eyes. If fuch there are--fure, in an bumbler way, The fex, without much guilt, may write a play: That they've done nobler things, there's no denial; With all your judgment, then, prepare for trial---Summon your critic pow'rs, your manbood fummon, A brave man will protect, not hurt a woman; Let us wish modestly to share with men, If not the force, the feather of the pen.

And why not wear on? --- We hall have your voters

had then our parfe, our mind

I Must, will speak—I bope my dress and air
Announce the man of fashion, and no player;
Tho' gentlemen are now forbid the scenes,
Yet have I rush'd thro' heroes, kings, and queens;
Resolv'd, in pity to this polish'd age,
To drive these hallad-heroes from the stage—

"To drive the deer with bound and born,

" Earl Percy took bis way;

"The child may rue, that is unborn,

"The bunting of that day."

A pretty basis, truly, for a modern play!

What! shall a scribbling, sensetes woman dare

To your refinements offer such coarse fare?

Is Douglas, or is Percy sir'd with passion?

Ready for love or glory, death to dash on,

Fit company for modern still-life men of fashion?

Such madness will our hearts but slightly graze,

We've no such frantic nobles now a-days.

Heart-strings, like siddlestrings, vibrate no tone,

Unless they're tun'd in perfect unison;

And youths of yore, with ours can ne'er agree-
They're in too sharp, ours in too stat a key.

Could we believe old stories, those strange sellows

Married for love---could of their wives be jealous---

Nay,

E PI LOO, G Ŭ E I

Nay, constant to 'em too -- and, what is worse, The vulgar fouls thought cuckoldom a curfe. Most wedded pairs had then one purse, one mind, One bed too -- fo preposterously kind---From such barbarity (thank heav'n) we're much refin'd. Old songs their bappiness at home record, From bome they sep'rate carriages abborr'd---One borse serv'd both --- my lady rode behind my lord. 'Twas death alone could snap their bonds asunder---Now tack'd fo flightly, not to fnap's the wonder. Nay, death itself could not their bearts divide, They mix'd their love with monumental pride, For, cut in stone, they still lie side by side, But why these gothic ancestors produce? Why scour their rusty armours? What's the use? 'Twould not your nicer optics much regale, To see us beaux bend under coats of mail; Should we our limbs with iron doublets bruife, Good bear'n! bow much court-plaister we should use; We wear no armour now --- but on our shoes. Let not with barbarism true taste be blended, Old vulgar virtues cannot be defended, Let the dead rest --- we living can't be mended.

Learn, Sir, that virtue, while 'tis free from blame, Is modest, lowly, meek, and unassuming; Not apt, like fearful vice, to shield its weakness, Beneath the studied pomp of boastful phrase, Which swells to hide the poverty it shelters; But when this virtue feels itself suspected, Insulted, set at nought, its whiteness stain'd, It-then grows proud, forgets its humble worth, And rates itself above its real value,

Not fudden; no; long has the storm been gathering,
Which threatens speedily to burst in ruin,

ELWINA.

O I will tell thee all! thou cou'dst not find An hour, a moment in Elwina's life, When her full heart so long'd to ease its burthen, And pour its forrows in thy friendly bosom: Hear then with pity, hear my tale of woe. And, O forgive, kind nature, filial piety, If my presumptuous lips arraign a father! Yes, Birtha, that belov'd, that cruel father, Has doom'd me to a life of hopeless anguish, To die of grief e'er half my days are number'd, Doom'd me to give my trembling hand to Douglas, 'Twas all I had to give, my heart was—Percy's.

ELWINA.

ELWINA,

The fame. During the chace,
Some of my father's knights receiv'd an infult
From the Lord Percy's herdsmen, churlish foresters,
Unworthy of the gentle blood they serv'd,
My father, proud and jealous of his honour,
(Thou know'st the fiery temper of our Barons)
Swore that Northumberland had been concern'd
In this rude outrage, nor wou'd hear of peace,
Or reconcilement which the Percy offer'd;
But bade me hate, renounce, and banish him,
O! 'twas a task too hard for all my duty,
I stroye, and wept, I stroye—but still I lov'd.

BIRTHA.

Indeed 'twas most unjust; but say what follow'd?

ELWINA.

Why shou'd I dwell on the disastrous tale? Forbid to see me, Percy soon embark'd, With our great king against the Saracen. Soon as the jarring kingdoms were at peace, Earl Douglas, whom till then I ne'er had seen, Came to this castle; 'twas my hapless fate To please him. — Birtha! thou can'ft tell what follow'd:

But who shall tell the agonies I felt?
My barbarous father forc'd me to dissolve
The tender vows himself had bid me form——
He dragg'd me trembling, dying, to the altar,
I sigh'd, I struggled, fainted, and—complied.

BIRTHA.

Did Douglas know a marriage had been once Propos'd 'twixt you and Percy?

ELWINA.

If he did, He thought, like you, it was a match of policy, Nor knew our love furpass'd our father's prudence.

BIRTHA.

Should he now find he was the instrument Of the Lord Raby's vengeance?

ELWINA.

'Twere most dreadful!

My father lock'd this motive in his breast,

And seign'd to have forgot the Chace of Cheviot.

Some moons have now completed their slow course

Since my sad marriage.—Percy still is absent.

BIRTHA.

Nor will return before his fov'reign comes.

ELWINA.

Talk not of his return! this coward heart Can know no thought of peace but in his absence. How, Douglas here again? some fresh alarm!

Enter Douglas, agitated, with letters in bis band.

Douglas.

Madam, your pardon-

What difturbs my lord?
Nothing.—Difturb? I ne'er was more at ease.
These letters from your father give us notice
He will be here to-night;—He further adds
The king's each hour expected.

ELWINA.

How? the king?

Said you the king?

Douglas.

And 'tis Lord Raby's pleasure
That you among the foremost bid him welcome.
You must attend the court.

ELWINA.

Must I, my lord?

DOUGLAS.

Now to observe how she receives the news!
(Aside.

ELWINA.

I must not,—cannot.—By all the tender love You have so oft profess'd for poor Elwina, Indulge this one request—O let me stay!

Douglas.

Enchanting founds! fhe does not wish to go-

The buftling world, the pomp which waits on greatness,
Ill fuits my humble, unambitious foul; —
Then leave me here, to tread the safer path
Of private life, here, where my peaceful course
Shall be as silent as the shades around me;
Nor shall one vagrant wish be e'er allow'd
To stray beyond the bounds of Raby Castle.

Douglas.

O music to my ears! (Aside.) Can you resolve To hide those wondrous beauties in the shade, Which rival kings wou'd cheaply buy with empire? Can you renounce the pleasures of a court, Whose roofs resound with minstrelsy and mirth?

ELWINA.

My lord, retirement is a wife's best duty, And virtue's safest station is retreat.

DOUGLAS.

My foul's in transports! (Afide.)—But can you forego

What wins the foul of woman—admiration?
A world, where charms inferior far to yours,
Only prefume to shine when you are absent?
Will you not long to meet the public gaze?
Long to eclipse the fair, and charm the brave?

ELWINA.

These are delights in which the mind partakes

DOUGLAS.

Douglas.

I'll try her farther. (Aside)

(Takes her band, and looks stedfastly at her as he speaks.)

But reflect once more;
When you shall hear that England's gallant peers,
Fresh from the fields of war, and gay with glory,
All vain with conquest, and elate with same,
When you shall hear these princely youths contend,
In many a tournament for beauty's prize;
When you shall hear of revelry, and masking,
Of mimic combats, and of sestive halls,
Of lances shiver'd in the cause of love,
Will you not then repent, then wish your fate,
Your happier sate had till that hour reserv'd you
For some plum'd conqueror?

ELWINA.

My fate, my lord, Is now bound up with yours.

DOUGLAS.

Here let me kneel—
Yes, I will kneel, and gaze, and weep, and wonder;
Thou paragon of goodness!—pardon, pardon,

(Kisse her hand.)
I am convinc'd—I can no longer doubt,
Nor talk, nor hear, nor reason, nor resect.

Our days have still been cold and joyless all;

Which first subdu'd my soul, and still enslave it,
She begg'd to stay behind in Raby Castle,
For courts, and cities had no charms for her.

The hour, the fpot is facred to Elwina. This was her fav'rite walk; I well remember, (For who forgets that loves as I have lov'd?) 'Twas in that very bower she gave this scarf, Wrought by the hand of love; she bound it on, And, fmiling, cried, Whate'er befal us, Percy, Be this the facred pledge of faith between us. I knelt, and fwore, call'd every pow'r to witness, No time, nor circumstance, shou'd force it

But I wou'd lofe my life and that together. Here I repeat my vow.

TALL SIT HUBERT.

Is this the man Beneath whose single arm an host was crush'd? He, at whose name the Saracen turn'd pale? And when he fell, victorious armies wept, And mourn'd a conquest they had bought so dear? How has he chang'd the trumpet's martial note, And all the stirring clangor of the war, For the foft melting of the lover's lute! Why are thine eyes still bent upon the bower? I ve sold thee, good Sir Fubert, by what wonder

I was preferred, the York P. With the flain.

O Hubert, Hubert, to a foul enamour'd, There is a fort of local sympathy, Which, when we view the scenes of early passion, Paints the bright image of the object lov'd, In stronger colours, than remoter scenes Cou'd eyer paint it, realizes shade, Dreffes a deuter joy

Dresses it up in all the charms it wore, Talks to it nearer, frames its answers kinder, Gives form to fancy, and embodies thought.

Sir HUBERT.

I should not be believ'd in Percy's camp,
If I shou'd tell them that their gallant leader,
The thunder of the war, the bold Northumberland,
Renouncing Mars, dissolv'd in amorous wishes,
Loiter'd in shades, and pin'd in rosy bowers,
To catch a transient glance of two bright eyes.

PERCY.

Enough of conquest, and enough of war! Ambition's cloy'd—the heart resumes its rights. When England's king, and England's good requir'd,

This arm not idly the keen falchion brandish'd: Enough—for vaunting misbecomes a soldier. I live, I am return'd—am near Elwina! See'st thou those turrets? Yes, that castle holds

But wherefore tell thee this? for thou hast seen her. How look'd, what said she? Did she hear the tale Of my imagin'd death without emotion?

Sir Hubert.

Percy, thou hast seen the musk-rose newly blown,

Disclose its bashful beauties to the sun, Till an unfriendly, chilling storm descended, Crush'd all its blushing glories in their prime, Bow'd its fair head, and blasted all its sweetness. So droop'd the maid, beneath the cruel weight Of my sad tale.

ELWINA.

Then Percy's dead!

Doug LAS. Holler and the

He is.—O great revenge, thou now art mine! See how convultive forrow rends her frame! This, this is transport!—injur'd honour, now, Receives its vast, its ample retribution. She sheds no tears, her grief's too highly wrought;
"Tis "Tis speechless agony.—She must not faint— She shall not 'scape her portion of the pain. No! she shall feel the fulness of distress. And wake to keen perception of her loss.

BIRTHA.

Monster! Barbarian! leave her to her forrows.

ELWINA. (In a low broken voice.)

Douglas—think not I faint, because thou see It.
The pale, and bloodless cheek of wan despair.
Fail me not yet, my spirits; thou cold heart,
Cherish thy freezing current one short moment.
And bear thy mighty load a little longer.

Douglas.

Percy; I multavow it, bravely fought;—
Died as a hero flou'd;—but; as he fell,
Hear it, fond wanton, call'd upon thy name,
And his laftly guilty breath figh'd out—Elwina!
Come—give a loofe to rage, and feed my ford
With wild complaints, and womanish upbraidings.

BLWINA. (In a low folemn voice.)

No : we stigned with land

The fortow's weak that wastes itself in words.

Mine is substantial anguish—deep, not loud;

Ido not rave.—Resentment's the return

Of common souls for common injuries.

Light grief is proud of state, and courts compassion;

But there's a dignity in cureless forrow,

A sullen grandeur which disclains complaint.

Rage is for little wrongs—Despair is dumb.

[Exeunt Elevina and Birtha.

Douglas.

DOUGLAS.

Why this is well!—her fense of woe is strong!
The sharp, keen tooth of gnawing Grief devours

Feeds on her heart, and pays me back my pangs. Since I must perish, 'twi l be glorious ruin: I fall not singly, but, like some proud tower, I'll crush surrounding objects in the wreck, And make the devastation wide and dreadful.
